A Public Lecture by

D. Daniel Sokol

D. Daniel Sokol is Professor of Law at the University of Florida Levin College of Law. He is the editor of the “Antitrust and Competition Policy Blog” and co-editor of the first three volumes of the Global Competition Law and Economics book series (Stanford University Press), the Oxford Handbook of International Antitrust Economics Volumes 1 and 2 (Oxford University Press, 2014), and the Global Antitrust Compliance Handbook (Oxford University Press 2014). He has two books under contract with Cambridge University Press – The Antitrust Intellectual Property Handbook and Patent Assertion Entities and Competition.

Daniel’s work has been published in law reviews and economics journals and spans numerous topics, including mergers, cartels, monopolization, pricing issues, compliance, corporate governance, institutional design, capacity building, government restraints, and comparative and international antitrust issues. His most recent article is The Evolution of U.S. Cartel Enforcement, which appears in the current issue of the Journal of Law and Economics. He has provided technical assistance and capacity building to antitrust agencies and utilities regulators around the world. Daniel is also a non-governmental advisor to the International Competition Network for several working groups and is a frequent speaker to both practitioner and academic audiences globally. In 2014, the Global Competition Review named Daniel the Antitrust Academic of the Year.

He will discuss hot topics in the Antitrust – Intellectual Property interface. This includes issues of competition in the internet, patent licensing, pharmaceuticals, and online sales.
