Feedback-based resource allocation for Serverless Computing

Yu-An Chen, ISI

Abstract

We propose a feedback-based control framework that efficiently allocates resources for serverless functions while maintaining applications' timing requirement. The framework uses a hierarchical approach for function chains deployment. The goal of the project is to provide app developers a framework to satisfy application's timing requirements and achieve efficient resource usage with ease.